Less House-Cleaning More Health
Less Annoyance More Comfort

Such is the experience of women who use Pearline for house cleaning, and the degree of health and comfort is largely due to the way they use it. Directions for saving labor on every package. Delicate women can clean house by its aid; children will be a help and husbands will never know the work is going on—out of the way, and they will be ignorant of it. It is both tosay that Pearline hurts the clothing, the paint or the hands. Numbers of people clean their teeth with it; many babies have been washed with it from their birth; the most delicate of laces and linens have been subjected to the severest of tests. Everything washable, and everybody who must do this work, is benefited by reason of the use of Pyle's Pearline. It's the modern soap. You'll know it, use it, sooner or later. Your grocer keeps the goods. Pyle's and many insurance grocers are being lined up who they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pyle line." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous.

THE BOSTON LEADER

BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS

U. A. BOUTELLE, Editor

All business letters should be addressed to Boutelle & Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed to "Editor of World and Courier."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 1869.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "When Speaker Reed comes West he will meet with a rotting reception."

It is stated that Charles Emory Smith, United States Minister to Russia, will not return to his post but resign his position as editor of the Philadelphia Press.

The Massachusetts Democrats have once more placed William E. Russell in the field of their State ticket. In a few weeks he will be able to confide with Mr. Thompson of Maine.

One more resuscitation fight and the Republicans wouldn't have a majority in the Legislature—Boston.

We desire a reserved seat in the next Democratic State Convention when the editor of the Age suggests "one more re-submission fight."

The Boston Post does not like the editor of Congressmen Greenidge before the Massachusetts Republican convention. We do not blame our Democratic contemporaries. The gentlemen struck right out from the shoulder and every blow told, leaving the Post no other alternative than to curse the sore spots. The editor did not tend to improve its temper.

The Commercial remarks that the Maine election is a back number now. We are not surprised that our contemporaries in any case to avoid discussion on the result of the election, as well as the disgraceful tact as it adopted to bolster up its Hooper movement, which was buried under almost 10,000 Republican plurality in the State. Having conclusively shown that it resorted to falsehood in the hope of deceiving the people we are willing it should seek obscurity.

It appears from the New York Journal's report that there was a lively contest in the Democratic convention in Connecticut between the Cleveland and anti-Cleveland factions. The latter prevailed and the platform was framed simply to endorse the National platform of 1868, with all individual references omitted. The report says: "Connecticut's Democratic convention, held at Albany Hall today, stands alone in the refusal to endorse the administration of Grover Cleveland."

The only contests in the Massachusetts Republican convention were on the minor effect, the head of the ticket being nominated by acclamation. The vote for Secretary of State was exceedingly close, William H. Ulm receiving 618 votes, 600 being necessary for a choice, his chief competitor receiving 568 votes. J. Henry Gould received the nomination for Auditor, having 611 votes against 577 for Goss H. Field. Albert E. Philbrick was a winner in the nomination for Attorney General, receiving 604 votes against 223 for Andrew J. Waterman.

We are glad to see that the Ellsworth & Burrows withdraws its previous assertion that the Republicans generally preclude the Speaker to Hancock county, and now, quits itself with the expression of its individual opinion that Mr. Winslow "will be the Speaker." The point this Win's raised was that the speakership belonged to the people and could not be forced upon in the official manner that characterized the American's original article. Hancock county has not more claim to the office than Penobscot, which rests with the representatives of the people.

Senator Purple (Dem. Ind.) is quoted as saying of Mr. Speaker's re-election: "I don't care if he gets it. I care only if we get the next House. I want to see him out of his seat. If I had a vote in the body I would vote to throw him out no matter what the facts were. I'd do it on general principles."—New York Tribune.

No one would accuse Senator Purple of entreating any particular regard for facts. The history of his elevation to the Senate, one of the most disgraceful chapters in the political history of Indiana, is proof conclusive on this point. But what a hideous time the Democrats will have in ousting Mr. Reed. If they do get control of the next House.

The Belfast Age excuses its remark that the Republican plurality in the State "will only be about 12,000" on the ground that the article was written on Tuesday following the election. But this is not a valid excuse, as the returns printed in all the daily papers Tuesday morning showed a plurality of 15,000 to 18,000 and the Age admits that when its editorial was written "actual returns showed a plurality for Harlan of something over 16,000," although it adds that the figures were on the "erroneous." This last suggestion is to the nature of errors. Instead of decreasing the figures went the other way until they nearly touched 18,000. The fact is our Democratic contemporaries made a bad break.

Extracts from all but six publications have been received at the office of Secretary of State, giving the following vote in the recent election: Burleigh, 61,096; Thompson, 45,574; Clark, 32,049; Astor, 42,626; total vote, 123,365; Republican plurality, 15,310. Instead of the telling off predicted by the Democrats these returns show that the Republican plurality is even larger than the presidential year and an increase of over 5,000 as compared with the result of the 1866 election, the last of the year. When that rump Democratic convention overruled the work of its predecessor and inaugurated a license campaign, The Washington said:

When the vote of the State is all in the license fees will have no effect for any one but a political undertaker.

A gratifying compliment.

The following extracts are taken from a letter addressed to Congressman Boutelle by one of the prominent engineer officers of the United States Navy, and form a gratifying compliment to his efforts during previous sessions to defeat measures tending to depreciate the importance of the engineer corps in the building up of our new navy. The writer says:

In reading of the very successful trial of the cruiser San Francisco, where it was so plainly shown that machinery of American design could successfully compete with that from England, could not help thinking of your bill in the order of that success was due to you. If it were not efforts a few years ago that preserved the autonomy of the Bureau of Naval Engineering and with it the professional pride and ambition of the officers of the engineer corps, and stimulated us to form in this country a naval engineering school, it is difficult to conceive how the country that your estimate of the importance of the preservation of that autonomy was well founded.

Rest assured, my dear sir, that every engineer officer of the Navy, and I am sure of the rank and file, will always appreciate the great service you rendered them and the engineering profession, and while the nation will probably perceive "political history" to be, the effects of your work will remain in the public mind for a long time to come, and to the confidence in the naval service of the nation, that is an absolute necessity if our Navy Department is to keep pace with the march of events.

Very sincerely yours, etc.

George W. Boutelle, U. S. Navy, Engineer Officer.
